

Being a Social Detective

Being a social detective means we use our eyes, ears, and other senses to notice other people and what's happening around them. This helps you figure out what people are thinking and feeling and what you might do or say in a situation. Thinking with your eyes helps you become a better social problem solver.

Look at the picture below. There are lots of clues about what's going on. Use these clues to answer the questions on the next page. There might be more than one right answer for a question, so don't worry if you and your classmates come up with different answers!

Being a Social Detective

1. How do you think the kids know each other?

2. Who might the adult standing in front of the bus be?

3. Where do you think they might have been? Where might they be going?

4. What season could it be?

5. What's the name of the town where they are?
